

Big Brother

Episodes & Clips

News

Cast

About

< BACK

Big Brother Evicted Houseguest: 'I Did Have The Best Of Intentions'

Posted By: John Powell | July 23, 2021

By John Powell – GlobalTV.com

They say the road to hell is paved with good intentions and although that may be a tad bit dramatic when speaking about, analyzing Brandon "Frenchie" French and his gameplay, he readily admits that his approach to Big Brother may have been misguided. He would play very differently if he is ever given the chance again.

John Powell: Your gameplay and time in the house was very chaotic. If you were given the chance to play again what would you do differently?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "I'll tell you what, if my story isn't over I'm going to play for me next time instead of what I wanted as a fan this time. You will see a whole new Frenchie then."

John Powell: You mentioned your family a lot in the house. What do you hope they take from your time on the show?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "That I live my life for them and nothing else in this world is more important than my family."

John Powell: When you were Head of Household you were very emphatic that you wouldn't put a minority or a female in a position that they could be voted out. You then nominated Kyland and Alyssa on your HoH. Can you explain the thinking behind those decisions?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "Sitting in that room watching those keys in front of you, you don't realize how few people there are to nominate. My nomination pond turned into a rain droplet and I only had a select number of names and 99 percent of those were women and minorities. I knew I had an end goal for Travis. I wanted to send a message to Christian so I nominated Alyssa with the intent that she was not going home, there was no way that was happening."

"I fully trusted Kyle and I knew that had he a good chance to win the veto. He's a strong individual and he would have used it so I could put up Travis. I trusted him. Winning HoH, there was that twist at the end where I had to roll those dice. At that time I didn't know what the veto was going to bring so there could have been something like that. I definitely trusted Kyle to use the veto in a way that would have helped us. That's why he was up there. He was strictly a pawn and they were both just keeping seats for my real target, which was Travis."

"I didn't have anybody else to nominate. If I had nominated Brent that would have blown up the whole Slaughterhouse and I didn't trust the Slaughterhouse. I knew that they would come after me had I nominated Brent. I knew either way that I was in trouble."

John Powell: Do you understand why the houseguests lost their trust in you over those decisions?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "I knew it. It was a Catch-22 situation. When we walked through that door we had no idea what was going on and as things happen you have to evolve and change with the things that happen in the house. That's exactly what I did but I knew that the endgame was the same. My endgame was Travis and regardless of how I got there, I got there. I held true to what I originally wanted. That upset people but at the end of the day, I got who I wanted."

John Powell: Over the weekend we saw you speak to Derek Frazier, your closest friend in the house and you told him you wanted to quit the game. What prompted that and what convinced you to stay?

Brandon "Frenchie" French (voice cracking): "It had absolutely had nothing to do with the game. I had something internal going on. It literally had nothing to do with the game at that point. I don't really want to get into that much."

John Powell: That's okay, Frenchie. You don't have to discuss it if you don't want to.

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "I had a beautiful, beautiful conversation with Azéah. I believe that God put me in that house and allowed me to have my dream but in order to do that he was going to humble me for something that I had been holding onto for five years now. It's a beautiful thing and it needed to happen. It had to happen inside of that house. In the end, I wouldn't trade my time there for anything."

John Powell: You have been a fan of the Big Brother franchise forever. What about the experience surprised you the most and what will you remember most about it?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "Being able to meet different kinds of people! Growing up in the military, I never had that lifelong friend. Every year or two, we were moving around and I was forced to meet a whole new group of friends. When I met Derek Frazier I knew instantly that we would be friends forever and to me that's the greatest experience that I can take out of this game and being splattered with paint isn't far behind it! Those things don't happen every day in your life. You don't get to experience that! To be able to go from watching on the couch and actually playing the game was amazing!"

John Powell: You tried to start a women's alliance and after that a lot of the women expressed displeasure that a man was starting a female alliance. Looking back what are your thoughts about that?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "Honestly, I did have the best of intentions with it. I wanted to see them stick together. I wanted to see them go far. The fan in me always wanted to see that. I had every intention of stepping aside from that and letting them do their thing. I even told them when they came up with the name that I didn't like that. There's a lot of timid people in that house, both male and female. I wanted them to step out of it and I wanted to see them do great things. I did have the best intentions with that."

John Powell: Who do you think is playing the best game right now and who do you think is just floundering?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "Hannah is definitely playing the best game right now and hands down. She's super intelligent, super smart. She's an amazing person inside and out and if they don't watch out, she's going to win the money. Of course, I would like to see it with Derek Frazier but if he's out I would love to see Hannah win. She deserves it. She's playing super smart. The person that's allowing him to actually play is Christian. He's just kind of doing what he's got to do to get by."

John Powell: You mentioned before that you're not a fan of the "meatheads". Who are the "meatheads" in the house?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "Christian, Brent, Travis, Xavier and Derek X. Everyone of them would have been out the door if I had my way. My whole goal coming into the game was to make a point week one that it wasn't going to be like every season, I would have taken out Kyland and Alyssa on your HoH. Can you explain the thinking behind those decisions?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "I knew it. It was a Catch-22 situation. When we walked through that door we had no idea what was going on and as things happen you have to evolve and change with the things that happen in the house. That's exactly what I did but I knew that the endgame was the same. My endgame was Travis and regardless of how I got there, I got there. I held true to what I originally wanted. That upset people but at the end of the day, I got who I wanted."

John Powell: Over the weekend we saw you speak to Derek Frazier, your closest friend in the house and you told him you wanted to quit the game. What prompted that and what convinced you to stay?

Brandon "Frenchie" French (voice cracking): "It had absolutely had nothing to do with the game. I had something internal going on. It literally had nothing to do with the game at that point. I don't really want to get into that much."

John Powell: That's okay, Frenchie. You don't have to discuss it if you don't want to.

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "I had a beautiful, beautiful conversation with Azéah. I believe that God put me in that house and allowed me to have my dream but in order to do that he was going to humble me for something that I had been holding onto for five years now. It's a beautiful thing and it needed to happen. It had to happen inside of that house. In the end, I wouldn't trade my time there for anything."

John Powell: You have been a fan of the Big Brother franchise forever. What about the experience surprised you the most and what will you remember most about it?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "Being able to meet different kinds of people! Growing up in the military, I never had that lifelong friend. Every year or two, we were moving around and I was forced to meet a whole new group of friends. When I met Derek Frazier I knew instantly that we would be friends forever and to me that's the greatest experience that I can take out of this game and being splattered with paint isn't far behind it! Those things don't happen every day in your life. You don't get to experience that! To be able to go from watching on the couch and actually playing the game was amazing!"

John Powell: You tried to start a women's alliance and after that a lot of the women expressed displeasure that a man was starting a female alliance. Looking back what are your thoughts about that?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "Honestly, I did have the best of intentions with it. I wanted to see them stick together. I wanted to see them go far. The fan in me always wanted to see that. I had every intention of stepping aside from that and letting them do their thing. I even told them when they came up with the name that I didn't like that. There's a lot of timid people in that house, both male and female. I wanted them to step out of it and I wanted to see them do great things. I did have the best intentions with that."

John Powell: Who do you think is playing the best game right now and who do you think is just floundering?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "Hannah is definitely playing the best game right now and hands down. She's super intelligent, super smart. She's an amazing person inside and out and if they don't watch out, she's going to win the money. Of course, I would like to see it with Derek Frazier but if he's out I would love to see Hannah win. She deserves it. She's playing super smart. The person that's allowing him to actually play is Christian. He's just kind of doing what he's got to do to get by."

John Powell: You mentioned before that you're not a fan of the "meatheads". Who are the "meatheads" in the house?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "Christian, Brent, Travis, Xavier and Derek X. Everyone of them would have been out the door if I had my way. My whole goal coming into the game was to make a point week one that it wasn't going to be like every season, I would have taken out Kyland and Alyssa on your HoH. Can you explain the thinking behind those decisions?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "I knew it. It was a Catch-22 situation. When we walked through that door we had no idea what was going on and as things happen you have to evolve and change with the things that happen in the house. That's exactly what I did but I knew that the endgame was the same. My endgame was Travis and regardless of how I got there, I got there. I held true to what I originally wanted. That upset people but at the end of the day, I got who I wanted."

John Powell: Over the weekend we saw you speak to Derek Frazier, your closest friend in the house and you told him you wanted to quit the game. What prompted that and what convinced you to stay?

Brandon "Frenchie" French (voice cracking): "It had absolutely had nothing to do with the game. I had something internal going on. It literally had nothing to do with the game at that point. I don't really want to get into that much."

John Powell: That's okay, Frenchie. You don't have to discuss it if you don't want to.

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "I had a beautiful, beautiful conversation with Azéah. I believe that God put me in that house and allowed me to have my dream but in order to do that he was going to humble me for something that I had been holding onto for five years now. It's a beautiful thing and it needed to happen. It had to happen inside of that house. In the end, I wouldn't trade my time there for anything."

John Powell: You have been a fan of the Big Brother franchise forever. What about the experience surprised you the most and what will you remember most about it?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "Being able to meet different kinds of people! Growing up in the military, I never had that lifelong friend. Every year or two, we were moving around and I was forced to meet a whole new group of friends. When I met Derek Frazier I knew instantly that we would be friends forever and to me that's the greatest experience that I can take out of this game and being splattered with paint isn't far behind it! Those things don't happen every day in your life. You don't get to experience that! To be able to go from watching on the couch and actually playing the game was amazing!"

John Powell: You tried to start a women's alliance and after that a lot of the women expressed displeasure that a man was starting a female alliance. Looking back what are your thoughts about that?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "Honestly, I did have the best of intentions with it. I wanted to see them stick together. I wanted to see them go far. The fan in me always wanted to see that. I had every intention of stepping aside from that and letting them do their thing. I even told them when they came up with the name that I didn't like that. There's a lot of timid people in that house, both male and female. I wanted them to step out of it and I wanted to see them do great things. I did have the best intentions with that."

John Powell: Who do you think is playing the best game right now and who do you think is just floundering?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "Hannah is definitely playing the best game right now and hands down. She's super intelligent, super smart. She's an amazing person inside and out and if they don't watch out, she's going to win the money. Of course, I would like to see it with Derek Frazier but if he's out I would love to see Hannah win. She deserves it. She's playing super smart. The person that's allowing him to actually play is Christian. He's just kind of doing what he's got to do to get by."

John Powell: You mentioned before that you're not a fan of the "meatheads". Who are the "meatheads" in the house?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "Christian, Brent, Travis, Xavier and Derek X. Everyone of them would have been out the door if I had my way. My whole goal coming into the game was to make a point week one that it wasn't going to be like every season, I would have taken out Kyland and Alyssa on your HoH. Can you explain the thinking behind those decisions?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "I knew it. It was a Catch-22 situation. When we walked through that door we had no idea what was going on and as things happen you have to evolve and change with the things that happen in the house. That's exactly what I did but I knew that the endgame was the same. My endgame was Travis and regardless of how I got there, I got there. I held true to what I originally wanted. That upset people but at the end of the day, I got who I wanted."

John Powell: Over the weekend we saw you speak to Derek Frazier, your closest friend in the house and you told him you wanted to quit the game. What prompted that and what convinced you to stay?

Brandon "Frenchie" French (voice cracking): "It had absolutely had nothing to do with the game. I had something internal going on. It literally had nothing to do with the game at that point. I don't really want to get into that much."

John Powell: That's okay, Frenchie. You don't have to discuss it if you don't want to.

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "I had a beautiful, beautiful conversation with Azéah. I believe that God put me in that house and allowed me to have my dream but in order to do that he was going to humble me for something that I had been holding onto for five years now. It's a beautiful thing and it needed to happen. It had to happen inside of that house. In the end, I wouldn't trade my time there for anything."

John Powell: You have been a fan of the Big Brother franchise forever. What about the experience surprised you the most and what will you remember most about it?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "Being able to meet different kinds of people! Growing up in the military, I never had that lifelong friend. Every year or two, we were moving around and I was forced to meet a whole new group of friends. When I met Derek Frazier I knew instantly that we would be friends forever and to me that's the greatest experience that I can take out of this game and being splattered with paint isn't far behind it! Those things don't happen every day in your life. You don't get to experience that! To be able to go from watching on the couch and actually playing the game was amazing!"

John Powell: You tried to start a women's alliance and after that a lot of the women expressed displeasure that a man was starting a female alliance. Looking back what are your thoughts about that?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "Honestly, I did have the best of intentions with it. I wanted to see them stick together. I wanted to see them go far. The fan in me always wanted to see that. I had every intention of stepping aside from that and letting them do their thing. I even told them when they came up with the name that I didn't like that. There's a lot of timid people in that house, both male and female. I wanted them to step out of it and I wanted to see them do great things. I did have the best intentions with that."

John Powell: Who do you think is playing the best game right now and who do you think is just floundering?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "Hannah is definitely playing the best game right now and hands down. She's super intelligent, super smart. She's an amazing person inside and out and if they don't watch out, she's going to win the money. Of course, I would like to see it with Derek Frazier but if he's out I would love to see Hannah win. She deserves it. She's playing super smart. The person that's allowing him to actually play is Christian. He's just kind of doing what he's got to do to get by."

John Powell: You mentioned before that you're not a fan of the "meatheads". Who are the "meatheads" in the house?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "Christian, Brent, Travis, Xavier and Derek X. Everyone of them would have been out the door if I had my way. My whole goal coming into the game was to make a point week one that it wasn't going to be like every season, I would have taken out Kyland and Alyssa on your HoH. Can you explain the thinking behind those decisions?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "I knew it. It was a Catch-22 situation. When we walked through that door we had no idea what was going on and as things happen you have to evolve and change with the things that happen in the house. That's exactly what I did but I knew that the endgame was the same. My endgame was Travis and regardless of how I got there, I got there. I held true to what I originally wanted. That upset people but at the end of the day, I got who I wanted."

John Powell: Over the weekend we saw you speak to Derek Frazier, your closest friend in the house and you told him you wanted to quit the game. What prompted that and what convinced you to stay?

Brandon "Frenchie" French (voice cracking): "It had absolutely had nothing to do with the game. I had something internal going on. It literally had nothing to do with the game at that point. I don't really want to get into that much."

John Powell: That's okay, Frenchie. You don't have to discuss it if you don't want to.

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "I had a beautiful, beautiful conversation with Azéah. I believe that God put me in that house and allowed me to have my dream but in order to do that he was going to humble me for something that I had been holding onto for five years now. It's a beautiful thing and it needed to happen. It had to happen inside of that house. In the end, I wouldn't trade my time there for anything."

John Powell: You have been a fan of the Big Brother franchise forever. What about the experience surprised you the most and what will you remember most about it?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "Being able to meet different kinds of people! Growing up in the military, I never had that lifelong friend. Every year or two, we were moving around and I was forced to meet a whole new group of friends. When I met Derek Frazier I knew instantly that we would be friends forever and to me that's the greatest experience that I can take out of this game and being splattered with paint isn't far behind it! Those things don't happen every day in your life. You don't get to experience that! To be able to go from watching on the couch and actually playing the game was amazing!"

John Powell: You tried to start a women's alliance and after that a lot of the women expressed displeasure that a man was starting a female alliance. Looking back what are your thoughts about that?

Brandon "Frenchie" French: "Honestly, I did have the best of intentions with it. I wanted to see them stick together. I wanted to see them go far. The fan in me always wanted to see that. I had every intention of stepping aside from that and letting them do their thing. I even told them when they came up with the name that I didn't like that. There's a lot of timid people in that house, both male and female. I wanted them to step out of it and I wanted to see them do great things. I did have